SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION,

Plaintiff,

v.

TANNER S. ADAM, JONATHAN L.
ADAM, TRITEN FINANCIAL GROUP,
LLC, and GCZ GLOBAL LLC,

Defendants.

Civil Action File No.

JURY DEMAND

COMPLAINT

Plaintiff Securities and Exchange Commission (“Commission”) alleges as follows:

SUMMARY

1. From January 2023 until at least as late as June 14, 2024, Tanner Adam and his brother Jonathan Adam, a recidivist with prior convictions for state securities law violations (collectively, the “Adam Brothers”), through their respective alter-ego companies, Triten Financial Group, LLC (“Triten”) and GCZ Global LLC (“GCZ”), raised at least $61.5 million in funds from more than 80 investors.

2. Defendants offered these investors the opportunity to participate in a crypto asset lending pool the Adam Brothers purportedly operate in the decentralized finance (“DeFi”) space.

3. Operating from Miami, Florida and Angleton, Texas, respectively, Tanner and Jonathan Adam told investors that Jonathan Adam had invented an automated software “bot” that identifies and enters into “smart contracts.”

4. The Adam Brothers told investors that the smart contracts provide “flash loans” to arbitrage traders who trade crypto assets among crypto asset trading platforms.

5. Through promissory notes with Triten, and lending agreements or technology services agreements with GCZ, the Adam Brothers offered investors the opportunity to earn up to a 13.5 percent monthly return.

6. The Adam Brothers told investors that these monthly returns were generated from the fees earned on the total amount of capital purportedly made available for such flash loans on the well-known crypto asset trading platform operated by Gemini Trust Company.

7. The Adam Brothers told investors that their funds would be immediately “locked up” in a bot for deployment into the lending pool, such that nobody, the Adam Brothers included, could access the money until the agreed-upon length of the promissory note or investment contract had passed.

8. Specifically, the Adam Brothers told investors that their funds would first be wired to Kraken, another crypto asset trading platform, where the U.S. Dollars would be exchanged for the crypto asset Tether.

9. The Adam Brothers told investors that once the U.S. Dollars were converted to Tether, the Tether would then promptly be deployed through a crypto wallet to the lending pool.

10. The Adam Brothers did not use investors funds as represented and their representations were false and misleading.

11. While the Adam Brothers did send a portion of investor funds to two different crypto asset trading platforms, most investor funds were not deployed as represented by the Adam Brothers.

12. Instead, the Adam Brothers operated a Ponzi scheme until at least June 14, 2024.

13. Of the $61.5 million of investor funds raised by Defendants, at least $53.9 million was either misappropriated or used to pay interest, pay finders fees, and return principal to existing investors.

14. The Adam Brothers have used investor funds for a variety of personal expenses.

15. Tanner Adam has used investor funds to make the down and installment payments to build a $30 million condominium in Miami.

16. The Adam Brothers used over $1.8 million in investor funds to build houses in Texas for Jonathan Adam and their brother, their parents, and Jonathan's in-laws.

17. Jonathan Adam has used at least $480,000 of investor funds to purchase cars, trucks, and recreational vehicles.

18. The Adam Brothers' dissipation of assets has continued into June 2024, and less than $400,000 in investor funds remain in bank accounts controlled by the Adam Brothers.

VIOLATIONS

19. By the conduct described herein, Tanner Adam, Jonathan Adam, Triten, and GCZ have engaged and, unless restrained and enjoined by this Court, will continue to engage in acts and practices that constitute and will constitute violations of Section 17(a) of the Securities Act of 1933 ("Securities Act") [15 U.S.C. § 77q(a)] and Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act") [15 U.S.C. § 78j(b)] and Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder [17 C.F.R. § 240.10b-5].

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

20. The Commission brings this action pursuant to the authority conferred upon it by Sections 20(b) and 20(d) of the Securities Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 77t(b) and 77t(d)] and Section 21(d) of the Exchange Act [15 U.S.C. § 78u(d)].

21. This Court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to Section 22(a) of the Securities Act [15 U.S.C. § 77v(a)] and Section 27(a) of the Exchange Act [15 U.S.C. § 78aa(a)].

22. In connection with the transactions, acts, practices, and courses of business described in this Complaint, Defendants, directly and indirectly, have made use of the means or instrumentalities of interstate commerce, of the mails, and/or of the means and instruments of transportation or communication in interstate commerce.

23. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to Section 22(a) of the Securities Act [15 U.S.C. § 77v(a)], Section 27(a) of the Exchange Act [15 U.S.C. § 78aa(a)] and 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because Defendants offered and sold securities throughout the country, including in this district, and have consented to venue in this district.

FACTS

Defendants

24. Jonathan L. Adam, age 42, is a resident of Angleton, Texas.

25. Jonathan owns and controls GCZ Global LLC, a company that purports to operate an automated software bot on a lending platform that, within the DeFi space, enters into smart contracts that provide flash loans to arbitrage traders seeking to trade crypto assets among crypto asset trading platforms.

26. Jonathan is also an owner of Thissl, Inc. (“Thissl”), a data storage services company.

27. Jonathan has never held any securities licenses.

28. In 2004, in Topeka, Kansas, Jonathan was convicted of three felony securities law violations (securities fraud, engaging in business as a broker-dealer or agent without registration, and unlawful sale of unregistered securities). Jonathan was sentenced to 50 months in prison and ordered to pay $314,500 in restitution.

29. Jonathan has asserted the Fifth Amendment in response to a testimony subpoena that the Commission issued to him in the investigation that preceded this litigation.

30. Tanner S. Adam, age 38, is a resident of Miami, Florida.

31. Tanner owns and controls Triten Financial Group, LLC, a company that, together with GCZ, purports to engage in providing flash loans within the DeFi space.

32. Tanner has never held any securities licenses.

33. Tanner failed to produce any documents in response to a subpoena that the Commission issued to him in the investigation that preceded this litigation and refused to make himself available for testimony in response to a testimony subpoena that the Commission issued to him.

34. GCZ Global LLC is a Wyoming limited liability company with its principal place of business in Casper, Wyoming. GCZ is owned and controlled by Jonathan Adam. GCZ is not registered with the Commission in any capacity.

35. Triten Financial Group, LLC is a Wyoming limited liability company with its principal place of business in Angleton, Texas. Triten is owned and controlled by Tanner Adam. Triten has never been registered with the Commission in any capacity.

Related Party

36. Thissl, Inc. is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Danville, California. Jonathan Adam is a founder of Thissl and is Thissl's treasurer and a board member.

37. Thissl is a start-up technology company that offers data storage services. Thissl has never been registered with the Commission in any capacity.

Background

38. Though the Adam Brothers operated this Ponzi scheme together, soliciting investors jointly on calls and video conferences and sending funds between the bank accounts that each controls, they held themselves out to investors as having defined roles in the scheme, and each controls their own entity.

39. Jonathan presents himself as a self-described "tech nerd" and "the brains" of the operation who invented the bot.

40. Jonathan has a technology background and told investors that he had launched several successful technology businesses, including Thissl.

41. Jonathan is the principal of GCZ and raises investor funds through GCZ.

42. Jonathan controls all the funds flowing in and out of GCZ's bank accounts.

43. Tanner presents himself as the more social, business-minded one of the duo.

44. Tanner controls the Triten entity and raises investor funds through Triten.

45. Tanner controls all the funds flowing in and out of Triten's bank accounts.

46. Apart from one investor, GCZ and Triten appear to have separate pools of investors.

47. Mechanically, most investors entered into promissory notes or lending agreements with Triten or GCZ, agreeing to loan principal (in the form of either fiat or crypto assets) to the entities for a period ranging from one to ten years.

48. At least one investor entered into a "technology services agreement" with GCZ in which the investor agreed to loan principal (in the form of either fiat or crypto assets) to GCZ for a period of three years with the right to renew the agreement for an additional two years.

49. The Adam Bothers enticed investors to enter into these agreements with promises of earning substantial returns.

50. To date, the Adam Brothers, both themselves and through several individuals operating as finders, have successfully solicited more than 80 investors throughout the country to invest in Triten and GCZ.

51. The Adam Brothers promised those investors monthly investment returns of at least 8 percent, but in some cases of up to 13.5 percent.

Misrepresentations Concerning the Lending Pool Investment

52. The Adam Brothers consistently made numerous material misrepresentations to investors regarding the lending pool opportunity and their own backgrounds.

53. The Adam Brothers, in joint conversations and individually, over the telephone, through videos, or through video conferences, told investors highly specific information about the purported lending pool investment opportunity.

54. For example, the Adam Brothers led investors to believe that they were working with Gemini Trust Company, a New York trust company regulated by the New York State Department of Financial Services that was founded in 2014 by Tyler and Cameron Winklevoss and operates a well-known global crypto asset trading platform.

55. The Adam Brothers knew that Gemini Trust Company operated a crypto asset trading platform and that none of the Defendants had any affiliation with Gemini Trust Company.

56. The Adam Brothers told investors that Jonathan had invented a bot that entered smart contracts to provide flash loans to arbitrage traders seeking to trade crypto assets.

57. Jonathan told investors that he, through GCZ, began operating the bot on the Gemini platform, where it caught the attention of Gemini because the GCZ bot “outperformed” Gemini’s own bot.

58. When Jonathan told investors about Gemini, he knew that the investors believed that he was referring to Gemini Trust Company.

59. In response to an investor’s question about Jonathan’s relationship with Gemini Trust Company, Jonathan did not tell the investor that he was not working with Gemini Trust Company. Instead, he told the investor that Gemini has dozens of different companies and that he was working with Gemini’s Panamanian platform.

60. During a subsequent conversation with that same investor, Tanner referenced the prior discussion of Gemini Trust Company and explained that the Adam brothers were working with Gemini's Panamanian platform.

61. The Adam Brothers never told investors that neither they nor their companies were associated with the crypto asset trading platform operated by Gemini Trust Company.

62. The Adam Brothers told potential investors that Gemini wanted to purchase Jonathan's bot, but Jonathan declined.

63. The Adam Brothers told investors that instead, Jonathan had entered an exclusive contract with Gemini whereby Gemini would pay the Adam Brothers a rate of one-percent interest per day on the total balance of the lending pool capital the Adam Brothers made available for flash loans.

64. The Adam Brothers told investors that this rate would be paid regardless of whether the funds were actually deployed for the purpose of these flash loans.

65. The Adam Brothers told investors that the purported arrangement with Gemini created revenues of around 30 percent per month and served as the source for the returns paid to the investors.

66. The Adam Brothers told investors that the Adam Brothers were compensated by taking a share of the 30-percent return paid to them by Gemini.

67. The Adam Brothers told investors that they were not entitled to any other fees or compensation paid by investors.

68. The Adam Brothers told investors that they were raising funds to service the demands of the lending pool.

69. Tanner told one investor that they were trying to raise $250 million from investors.

70. Jonathan told investors that the Gemini agreement had been entered into between the Adam Brothers and Gemini's offshore Panamanian lending pool because Gemini and other crypto asset trading platforms were moving their operations offshore to avoid SEC regulation.

71. The Adam Brothers told investors that once the investors wired their funds in U.S. Dollars to GCZ's or Triten's bank account, the entities would purportedly wire the funds to Kraken, where the U.S. Dollars would be exchanged for the crypto asset Tether.

72. The Adam Brothers told investors that the Monday following receipt of investor principal, the Tether deployed to an automated bot through a crypto wallet and then to the lending pool, to be loaned out to arbitrage traders in the so-called DeFi space.

73. According to the Adam Brothers, when investor capital came into a Triten or GCZ controlled account or wallet, it was purportedly immediately deployed into the lending pool and “locked up” in a bot, such that nobody, the Adam Brothers included, could access the money until the agreed upon length of the investment contract had passed.

74. The Adam Brothers told investors that the risk to the investors’ principal was virtually non-existent, unless there was a complete global market meltdown.

75. The Adam Brothers told investors that at the end of the lending period, investors could either receive their principal back, or roll it into a new investment contract.

76. The Adam Brothers told investors that the fees from the arrangement with Gemini were purportedly paid in Tether by Gemini to the Adam Brothers’ crypto “profit wallet” and were then transferred to GCZ’s or Triten’s crypto “corporate wallet.”

77. According to the Adam Brothers, the fees were sent from the “corporate wallet” to the Adam Brothers’ Kraken accounts where the Tether was converted back to U.S. Dollars, sent to GCZ’s or Triten’s bank accounts, and then wired back to investors.

78. The Adam Brothers told investors that each brother had the pass keys to the other brother’s crypto wallet, and that each month they would get together to unlock their crypto wallets and process the returns to investors as described above.

79. These representations that the Adam Brothers made to investors are false.

80. Instead of deploying investor capital into smart contracts, the Adam Brothers misappropriated and misspent approximately $53.9 million of the $61.5 million raised from investors.

81. The Adam Brothers failed to tell investors that they were using investor funds to pay existing investors.

82. The Adam Brothers failed to tell investors that they were using investor funds to pay their personal expenses.

83. The Adam Brothers failed to disclose to some investors that they were paying finders fees to individuals who introduced them to others who ultimately invested.

84. Though the Adam Brothers transferred $12.9 million of investor funds to Coinbase and Kraken, they withdrew $5.3 million from those platforms back to their bank accounts.

85. To the extent that there is a net outflow of $7.6 million to Coinbase and Kraken, there is no evidence those funds have been deployed in any manner consistent with the representations made to investors.

86. The $7.6 million transferred to Coinbase and Kraken has not generated a daily return of 1%.

Adam Brothers' Misappropriation of Assets

87. Bank records from February 1, 2023, through June 30, 2024, show that the Adam Brothers misappropriated more than $19 million of the investor funds that they raised.

88. The following table reflects the funds misappropriated by the Adam Brothers:

	Triten	GCZ	Total
Investor funds raised in business and personal accounts	$ 40,707,612	$ 20,852,322	$ 61,559,934
Less: Investor payments and finder fees	(27,634,470)	(6,567,081)	(34,201,551)
Less: Net funds sent to crypto market	(5,495,976)	(2,077,917)	(7,573,893)
Less: Account balance at 06/30/24	(173,760)	(162,461)	(336,221)
Net misappropriation for personal use	$ 7,403,406	$ 12,044,863	$ 19,448,269

89. In addition to paying former investors with new investor money, the Adam Brothers used investor funds to finance their and their family's lifestyle and to invest in other business ventures.

90. Tanner directed investor funds in the amount of $3.725 million towards the down payment and progress payments for an 11,861 square foot, five-bedroom, nine-and-a-half-bathroom penthouse condominium he is building in Miami, with a total purchase price of nearly $30 million.

91. The Adam Brothers directed a total of $1.46 million of investor funds to a Texas home builder who built custom homes for their brother, their parents, Jonathan, and Jonathan's in-laws.

92. Jonathan, through GCZ, also provided a $3 million line of credit to the home builder to finance working capital, of which $637,000 was drawn.

93. In addition to the construction cost of the new homes in Texas, Jonathan, both individually and through GCZ, used over $995,000 of investor funds to pay escrow and title companies in connection with the construction of these homes.

94. Jonathan also spent over $360,000 of investor funds on home and construction related expenses, including over $75,000 for the construction of a pool.

95. Jonathan directed a total of over $480,000 of investor funds for the purchase of cars, trucks, and recreational vehicles.

96. The Adam Brothers used investor funds to pay living expenses for themselves and for their parents, including designer purchases at Louis Vuitton, Carolina Herrera, and Jimmy Choo, and credit card payments of over $220,000.

97. Tanner designated a Triten bank account for his parents from which his parents made credit card payments, tax payments, and payments for other living expenses exceeding $65,000 in a four-month period ending in June 2024.

Misrepresentations and Omissions Concerning Jonathan Adam's Background

98. Jonathan spent extensive time talking with and answering questions from potential investors about his background and Jonathan's other company, Thissl, on numerous video calls and at least one video presentation.

99. Jonathan also circulated a ten-minute video of himself making claims about his background and qualifications.

100. In those calls, presentation and videos, Jonathan made multiple misrepresentations about his background.

101. Jonathan falsely told investors that he serves as the cyber ambassador to the State of Kansas.

102. The State of Kansas does not employ anyone in the position of cyber ambassador.

103. Jonathan falsely told investors that Thissl received $59 million pursuant to a Simple Agreement for Future Equity investment from Sequoia Capital Operations LLC, a venture capital firm that specializes in seed stage, early stage, and growth stage investments in private companies across technology sectors.

104. Sequoia Capital Operations LLC Inc. has never made an investment in Thissl.

105. Jonathan falsely told investors that Thissl powers the entire network for Basecamp, LLC (“Basecamp”), a program management software company that previously used Amazon Web Services for its data storage needs and in October 2022 publicly announced that it would no longer be using Amazon Web Services.

106. Thissl has never provided any services to Basecamp.

107. Jonathan falsely told investors that Thissl has a large contract with Rackspace Technology, Inc. (“Rackspace”), a cloud computing services company.

108. Thissl has never had any contracts with Rackspace Technology.

109. Jonathan falsely told investors that Thissl has successfully litigated over its patents after being sued by large corporations, including Comcast, Oracle and IBM.

110. Neither Thissl, nor any prior owner of patents developed by Jonathan, has ever been involved in litigation over the patents developed by Jonathan.

111. These misrepresentations regarding Jonathan’s technical abilities and successes were important to many investors in making their decision to invest.

112. In touting his background and expertise, Jonathan also failed to disclose that he had previously been convicted of securities fraud and sentenced to 50 months in prison.

113. Tanner repeated to investors the misrepresentations about Sequoia’s investment in Thissl to investors.

114. Tanner also repeated to investors the misrepresentation about Jonathan's involvement as cyber ambassador to the State of Kansas.

115. Additionally, Tanner repeated to investors the misrepresentation about Thissl's contract with Rackspace.

116. Tanner failed to disclose Jonathan's criminal history to investors.

Risk of Dissipation of Remaining Investor Funds

117. The Adam Brothers continued to raise, and misappropriate, investor funds through at least June 2024.

118. In May and June 2024, the Adam Brothers raised $10.96 million and paid $8.8 million to investors with those funds.

119. Additionally, in June, Jonathan made credit card payments of over $50,000, paid at least $180,000 in attorney fees, sent $974,000 to other businesses he is affiliated with, and transferred $100,000 to his personal bank accounts.

120. As of June 30, 2024, $336,000 of investor funds remain in the bank accounts of Triten and GCZ.

121. As of June 30, 2024, the net outflow of funds to Coinbase and Kraken is $7.6 million which represents investor funds transferred to and still within crypto wallets.
